

Enterprise Resource Planning

ERP is planning to manage the organization to be able to use resources efficiently and for maximum benefit. The ERP system will act to link the data and all processes that occur in the organization to be able to work together as a single system.

CRM

ERPNext helps you track business Opportunities from Leads and Customers, send them Quotations, and book Sales Orders.

Human Resources

The Human Resources (HR) module covers the processes related to the HR department of a company. It maintains a complete employee database including contact information, salary details, attendance, performance evaluation, leaves, and appraisal records.

Finance & Accounting

With an ERP, you can take full advantage of the value of integration. All relevant transactional data from other modules (e.g., HR, sales, purchases, inventory, etc.) will automatically sync with your accounting data.

Reporting

The various reports in the Support module help understand data on how quickly support staff responded to customer issues, the issue types, issue priorities, timelines, and more.

Sales & Marketing

Selling is the communication that happens with the customer prior to and during the sale. You might be managing all the communication yourself or you may have a small team of sales people to handle this. ERPNext helps you track the communication leading up to the sale by keeping all your documents in an organized and searchable manner.

Inventory Management

Easily keep track of your inventory and fulfil your orders on time without worrying about replenishment with ERPNext, our feature-rich inventory management system.

Production & Planning

The Manufacturing module in ERP covers all necessary features a Manufacturing business would need. There are options to take a Work Order, enter stock of items, create a Production Plan, create a Downtime Entry, manage the Bill of Materials for Finished Goods / Template Items, generate reports, and more.
